GUNPLAY CLIMAXES DISORDER

One Man Now in Hospital From Shooting Affair Saturday

TAKES PLACE ON STREET

Man Under Arrest a Terror According to Stories From Police

Climaxing an evening of warfars, John Macanck, a Slav Saturday night at 11:30 o'clock nearly murdered Andy Marglevski in sensational gunplay on McKean avenue near Eleventh street. Having fired one bullet into the chest of Marglevski, Macanck, wildly waving the smoking gun and inviting trouble to anyone daring to follow him, ran up McKean avenue to Tenth street and then dashed toward his home. The police captured him within an hour when he tried to sneak into the rear door of his house at 822 Eighth street, only to sneak into the waiting arms of Policeman Wesley Corey. Marglevski, wounded in the left arm and side, was removed to the Memorial hospital at Monongahela Sunday, in a serious condition.

Macanck started trouble at a local hotel when he engaged in the playful pastime of hurling beer bottles at the luckless heads of some of his erstwhile friends. Expelled from this place he engaged in a scrap at the corner of Fifth street and McKean avenue. The police got the man he fought with as well as a man from the barroom fight, but Macanck escaped. On his hurried way down McKean avenue he met with trouble at Sixth street, and gave battle to a foreigner. Again he escaped just in the nick of time. His pugilistic opponent there was caught.

Macanck reached the Russian hall at the corner of McKean avenue and Twelfth street safely. Shortly he got into an argument. At 11:30 or thereabouts he and Andy Marglevski both left the place. The next thing that occurred was the shooting of the latter. They had had words and Macanck was by that time too far gone to be reasonable.

Marglevski was taken to his room at 1008 McKean avenue and a doctor called. The bullet had passed through his left arm and lodged in his left side.

When the police arrived all that the crowd would tell was that there had been a shooting and that Macanck had escaped, no one daring to follow him because of his threats and wild appearance.

When the man was captured he had no gun. He was taken to the lockup. Upon being locked up he encountered four who had been arrested previously for fighting with him.

Macanack is a married man with a proclivity to wildness when drinking. It is stated that he has already served a term for trouble elsewhere. He was married only a year or two ago.

PARADE AND RECEPTION DETAILS FOR BIG DEMONSTRATION GET ATTENTION

MARSHAL MAPS OUT PLANS FOR LINE FORMATION

Capt. J. K. Hein, Chief Marshal of Parade Announces Matters Relating to Events

ASKED TO GET BADGES

Capt. John K. Hein, who is to be the chief marshall for the big illuminated parade that will be one of the chief features of the four town celebration in Charleroi on Thursday of this week has perfected his plans. He today makes the announcement of the form.

First Division.

The first division will form on Second street with the right resting on Fallowfield avenue. If necessary there will be an extension back on Washington avenue to Fourth street. This will be the automobile division, and the aides in charge will be J. J. Hott, H. S. Piersol, A. D. Spencer, D. R. Duvall and K. W. Daly.

Second Division.

The second division will form on Washington avenue, with the right resting on Fourth street. Capt. Hein chief marshal and his staff will lead this division. The chiefs of staff will be C. S. McKean and Lawrence B. Frye and aides will be W. D Pollock, J. H. Frye, Henry Acker and Charles Wallgren. At the head of the division following the chief marshal and his staff will be the Charleroi fire department, a G. A. R. post and a Monessen Boys' Brigade.

Third Division.

The third division will form on Washington avenue with the right residing on Fifth street. John Majors and W. D. Pollock will look to the proper formation of this division as aides of the chief marshal. The third division will consist of automobile floats, wagon floats and footmen.

Parade to Move at 7:30.

Promptly at 7 o'clock the parade will be formed and it will move at 7:30 o'clock. It is important, according to Capt. Hein that he have an exact knowledge of the number of floats that will be in the parade, and he makes a special request that those who have not yet reported do so at once. Aides will be located at Fourth and Falowlfield and a Fifth and Fallowfield no direct autoes and floats to their places.

Line of Parade.

The line of parade will be from Second street to Ninth on Fallowfield avenue, down Ninth to McKean and thence up McKean to Second street. The reviewing stand will be located between Fourth and Fifth streets on McKean avenue, and the chief marshal and his staff will review the parade from in front of this stand.

Judges for the parade will be Herman Heupel, chairman; Wylie McCarty, R. J. Whitehead and Oscar Linn.

Following the parade band concerts will be given at the reviewing stand.

TOO MUCH SPEEDING CLAIM OF PARENTS

Asserted by Fallowfield Folk That Autoists Make it Dangerous for Children --School Must be Moved to Safer Spot

The majority of the school children who attend the Maple creek school are being kept at home until after the school board meets and decides whether or not to move the school building. Today only five pupils are in school. The total enrollment is 53. Lloyd W. McHaffey is the teacher.

Several days ago the parents circulated a petition, which they intend presenting to the board asking that the building be moved to a safer place. The building is now situated by the Maple creek road. Owing to the fact that autoists are in the habit of speeding past the building and that the children have no place to play except in the road, the parents decided to keep their children at home until the board takes some action. The board will meet Wednesday night.

AUTO ACCIDENTS TAKE PLACE IN THE VICINITY

There seemed to have been several auto accidents in the neighborhood of Charleroi over Saturday and Sunday. Rumors of several accidents that could not be verified reached the Mail office this morning.

L. A. McVay of Charleroi had a small mishap near First street on the Maple creek road Sunday morning about 1 o'clock, when his machine went over the bank. The machine was not damaged but two cars were required to draw the machine back to the road.

J. S. Fraser of Charleroi, ran his car onto the Charleroi-Pittsburg railways line near the brewery Saturday evening and broke a rear wheel. Rupert Hepler's car and another car ran together at the corner of Sixth street and Washington avenue Sunday morning. Hepler's car was not injured. The steering gear of the other car was broken.

It is reported that a Monessen car went over the hill about a mile from Charleroi on the Maple creek road Saturday night. It required a block and tackle to get the car back to the road.

The popular tenor Mr. Atkins will sing a number of popular songs with Tucelli's orchestra at Weber's Dance in Mights Auditorium Tuesday, October 13. All the latest music will be played by Tuccelli's orchestra. 85-t1

Wrist Broken By Auto.

Samuel Mill of Beallsville had his right wrist broken this afternoon about 1:50 o'clock, when he attempted to crank his automobile at the corner of Fifth street and Fallowfield avenue.

The first concert will be given by the Boys' band of Ellsworth and Cokeburg under the direction of Americus Pardini. Then Pardini who is an experienced bandmaster, will direct the Ellsworth-Cokeburg band in a concert.

In the parade the Boys' band of Ellsworth and Cokeburg will be given the preference. They will ride at the head of the first division in a truck that will be provided for them.

IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL FOR AUTO VICTIM

Impressive were the obsequies which were conducted Sunday afternoon for Edwin Ross Watson, the young man who met death last Wednesday in an automobile accident. The funeral services were held at 1:30 o'clock at the home of the young man's mother, on Lincoln avenue near Second street, and were attended by a large concourse of friends. Rev. John R. Burson, pastor of the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church, of which young Watson was a member was in charge of the services.

Members of the Washington Avenue Boys' Brigade of which the youthful auto victim was a member, attended the services in a body. The Donora Independent Infantry, in dress uniforms, came. These two organizations formed an escort to the railway station.

The body was taken to Dravsoburg on an afternoon train for interment in the Richland cemetery. The pallbearers were Zenobe Baudoux, Brice Ray, Everly Jobes, Curtis Collins, Charles Eneix, and Ralph Lewis.

CHARLEROI MAY BE REPRESENTED IN NEW LEAGUE

If plans are carried out Charleroi will be represented this season in the West Penn Basketball league, one of the best basketball organizations of the country. It was definitely announced in Pittsburg this moning that a team had been entered. James Russell, chief clerk at the Pittsburg Steel company at Monessen, who lives on Washington avenue is backing the project. Already several star players have been lined up. The West Penn circuit to date is made up as follows: Southside, Crafton, Homestead Jeannette and Charleroi.

ASSAULTED MAN DIES SUDDENLY

Shire Oaks is Scene of Murder Attended by Odd Circumstances

TWO MEN ARE MISSING

Couple Alleged to Have Made Attack Not to be Found by the Police

John Baretz of Shire Oaks aged 35 years, died Saturday night or Sunday morning as the result of being badly beaten Saturday afternoon by two of his friends. Vazily Mitrorizi and Frank Karmyis, who are alleged to have made the assault on Baretz are missing and are being hunted by the police.

It seems that Baretz, Mitrorizi, Karmyis and several others were having a beer party at the home of Tony Mitrorizi at Shire Oaks. A dispute arose between the three men and the two jumped onto Baretz. Little was thought of the matter at the time, but that night he became violently ill. They tried to get a doctor but failed. Sunday morning Dr. C. M. Speck went to see the man and found him dead.

Baretz was a married man. His wife is in the old country. Coroner James T Heffran has been notified as will hold an inquest. The two men disappeared immediately following the trouble and their whereabouts is still unknown.

MRS. MASTERS DIES; MOTHER OF LOCAL MAN

Mrs. Susan S. Masters, aged 80 years widow of the late Isaac W. Masters died at her home in Coal Center at 4:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church at that point. One son, John Edgar Masters, of Charleroi and one daughter, Minnie V. Masters, of Coal Center survive. Mr. Masters, the son, is a groceryman here, and is a member and president of the board of trustees of the Southwestern State Normal School at California.

Funeral services will be conducted from the late home Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will take lace at Howe's cemetery.

THREE WEEKS OLD JOSEPH DEVAUX DIES SATURDAY

Joseph D. Devaux, Jr., a son 3 weeks died Saturday at 12 o'clock. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Devaux of 601 1-2 Meadow avenue. Rev. Charles conducted the funeral services Sunday afternoon. Interment was in the Charleroi cemetery.

VICTORY BY COMMON CONSENT.

"We want to see the wheels go 'round." "Bread and Butter is the real issue in this campaign."

Those are the pleas of the people throughout Pennsylvania. Those mottos are inscribed on banners at every Republican meeting being held throughout Pennsylvania. Those are the sentiments that have already made the election of Senator Penrose and Dr. Martin G. Brumbaugh a foregone conclusion even this early in the campaign.

One of the directors of the poor of Westmoreland county announced last week that he was unable to attend the state convention of poor directors on account of the unusual demands of the poor people of the county for county assistance. The condition in the county never was worse the poor director declared, and the approach of winter is alarming not only those who are without work, but to the county authorities who have not made provision for caring for extraordinary demands from those who must live even though business is decreasing and industry has been strangled.

The voters of all the counties in the western end of the state are looking to the Republicans to restore prosperity and start the wheels of industry. They are concerned more for their bread and butter now in many cases actually scarce, then they are in promoting the selfish ambitions of Democratic place hunters.

It is no wonder, therefore, that Senator Penrose and Dr. Brumbaugh are being received at their every meeting in the western end of the state with wild enthusiasm and confident assurances of support not only from a reunited Republican party, but in innumerable cases from old line Democrats who are more concerned in industrial progress and a substantial business revival than they are in party lines or the policies that blight.

The Republican campaign in Pennsylvania has been a triumph. Republicanism means prosperity, and that more than any other one thing the people of this state favor.

PTOMAIN POISONING

The old-fashioned stomach ache where paregoric and other similar correctives were administered according to the seriousness of the ache is still in style. The particularly painful knid rejoices in the alliterative appellation of ptomain poisoning, but that doesn't help a bit when a person is suffering. Ptomain poisoning is really a serious thing, as any sufferer can testify. Here is what State Commissioner of Health Samuel G. Dixon has to say on the subject:

Ptomain poison causes a serious disturbance of the digestive organs due to the products of germ life. Generally speaking ptomains are the result of decomposition of food stuffs. This is caused by bacteria. In the process of their growth a poison is produced which effects a violent disturbance if introduced into the digestive system.

Sausage, decomposed fish, cheese, ice-cream, milk, canned meats and vegetables are the food stuffs most commonly responsible for ptomain poisining. Cooking will not always destroy the ptomains in food stuffs. It kills the bacteria but the poisonous substances will remain.

Unfortunately our sense of taste in the majority of instances does not warn us of the presence of these poisons. This is often due to the common practice of over seasoning our food stuffs and the excessive use of condiments. Also it is the practice of many canners to add preservatives which makes it possible for them to use decomposed meats or vegetables. If foods for canning are properly inspected before their preparation and the decayed portion eliminated, they can be made to keep without the addition of injurious preservatives.

Ptomain poisoning as a rule develops a few hours after eating and progresses rapidly.

In the treatment of promain poisoning the first essential is to wash out the stomach and empty the intestinal canal of as much of the decomposed food as possible. These things may be done while awaiting the arrival of the physician.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

A reporter on a certain paper was among those on a relief train that was being rushed to the scene of a railway wreck. About the first victim the reporter saw was a man sitting in the road with his back to a fence. He had a black eye, his face was somewhat scratched and his clothes were badly torn—but he was entirely calm.

The reporter jumped to the side of the man against the fence.

"How many hurt?" he asked of the prostrate one.

"Haven't heard of anybody being hurt," said the battered person.

"What was the cause of the wreck?"

"Wreck? Haven't heard of any wreck?"

"You haven't heard of any wreck? Who are you anyway?"

"Well, young man, I don't know that that's any of your business, but I am the claim agent of this road."

Last Friday night a party of Monongahela high school girls were returning home from Monessen, where they attended a football game, when a copy of a Donora paper bitterly arraigning them for actions on a previous visit to Donora, was shown. Instantly there was an uprising. Bitter things were said of the writer of the editorial. If they could only get hold of him once, heaven might have pity—they wouldn't.

A cruel man seated in a middle seat—some say he was from Charleroi—turned to one of the girls.

"Do you really want to see the writer of that article? he inquired.

"Yes, yes, is he here?" she excitedly breathed.

"That is the man back there," he advised pointing to a meek looking individual standing at the rear of the crowded car.

There was a flutter among the gay femininity on the car and a moment later there was a rush. The meek individual was surrounded, every girl talking at once and every one saying something harsh of a person who could be so terrible as to write things like that.

The man simply smiled, but said nothing. The girls finally ran out of things to say, as even girls will in time. He still smiled and remained speechless.

"Well why don't you say something," one vivacious miss demanded. Then the awful truth became known. He was a mute, and instead of being a newspaper man, was a millworker.

DEATH OF MRS. WINNETT CAUSED BY PARALYSIS

Stricken with paralysis while shopping in Charleroi, Mrs. Annie Winnett, aged 56 years and widow of the late William Winnett of Clover Hill suffered until Sunday morning at the home of Eugene Fau when she died at 5:45.

Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock Mrs. Winnett in company with others from Clover Hill came here by automobile. As she was alighting from the auto in front of the store of Eugene Fau she was stricken. Immediately she was carried into the Fau home and medical attention procured. She remained conscious only until 10 o'clock.

Mrs Winnett is survived by four children, David, Nellie, and Olive at home at Clover Hill, and Mrs Walter Carroll, of Clover Hill. Also a grandchild survives. J. W. Hill of Monongahela is a brother.

Funeral services will be conducted Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the late home. Rev. E. N. Duty, pastor of the Charleroi Christian church, will conduct the services. Interment will be in the Maple Creek cemetery.

MARKER BEATS AMOS SMITH IN A BIRD SHOOT

George Marker of Brownsville Saturday afternoon bested Amos Smith of Coal Valley in a live bird shoot on the local baseball ground. Marker killed 15 out of 20 birds and Smith 13 out of 20 birds. The shoot was for a purse of $1,000 each man having put up $500. It was well attended and betting was spirited. It is said one spectator got away with $700 in winnings.

PARADERS PROTEST TO PROFANITY

More than 250 Charleroi men marched in the holy name parade at Pittsburg Sunday. There were about 40,000 men in the parade, which is said to have been the largest parade ever held. Patrick Lundy of Allenport who marched with the Charleroi men was the oldest man in line. He is 72 years old.

The Charleroi men under the command of John Henrion as marshal marched with the third division. M. T. Crowley of Charleroi was an aid to James V. Walsh, chief marshal of the third division.

The parade this year was not alone a protest against profanity, but was in the nature of a demonstration for peace. For the first time, Right Rev. J. Regis Canevin, bishop of the Pittsburg diocese, and the father of the Holy Name societies was unable to lead the monster delegation. He had to content himself with viewing the wonderful spectacle from a window in the Mercy hospital where he is confined with a broken ankle.

The march ended at St. Paul's cathedral, where with solemn rites and the benediction the demonstration was brought to a close.

GOOD JOKE ON WIFEY

MRS. TRUEBOY'S FLIRTATION WITH HANDSOME "STRANGER."

She Really Thought She Had Never Before Seen the Young Man Who Taught Her to Swim, but It Turned Out She Had.

"You never—never—do the one thing I have asked you to do until I'm tired of asking'" said pretty Mrs. Trueboy to her husband.

O, you mean"—and he flourished one hand about his face, with a grin.

"Yes. Just that. I want you to shave. You're the only man in the neighborhood with a beard."

"Well, my dear, I want some badge of distinction."

"I don't care! I'm getting to hate your beard! Just think of it! I never saw you with a smooth face."

"But when we were sparking, dear, you thought my beard so nice — so silky, you said, and so becoming."

"But I've changed my mind. Other men of your age don't wear a beard. Nobody but old codgers. Besides, the other women talk about it. 'He must have a weak face,' I heard one of the neighbors say. She didn't think I was listening, the cat!"

"Well, dear, if you insist upon it, I'll shave the moment I get back from this fishing trip."

"What! Are you going fishing again?"

"Yes. Up in Canada. Want to come along?"

I should think not! And if you go fishing again, I shall go down to the shore for a couple of weeks. I suppose you'll be gone that long."

"All right, my dear. Go and enjoy yourself. But don't flirt too much."

"Flirt! The idea! Aren't you ashamed of yourself, John Trueboy? But I suppose you flirt when you're fishing."

"A little with the fish, yes. But there are no pretty girls where I'm going. We have to rough it up there."

"I don't believe you. Besides, you see plenty of pretty girls on the way there and back."

"I do eh?" And John Trueboy caught her in his arms and tried to kiss her.

"I'll never kiss you again, John, until you get rid of your beard. And I'll have a good look at you when you are shaved before I kiss you then." And she seemed to mean it.

John Trueboy started on his fishing trip, and Mrs Trueboy lost no time in making for the seashore.

Before Mrs. Trueboy started, however, she attended two bargain sales and outfitted herself elaborately. The season was a bit late, and she made bargains. She got a fetching bathing suit that displayed her sightly figure to the best advantage, and when she first made her appearance on the shore she was very good to look at, with a polka-dotted red bathing cap that gave the final touch of charm. She was a fine swimmer and looked far more alluring in the water than some women do on shore.

Mrs Trueboy had no notion of flirting when she went to the shore, although she felt a little resentment at Trueboy for selfishly going fishing and leaving her to her own devices.

But the first day she did flirt with a young man—one of the very few in the water—to the anger of every other woman on the beach. She sat with him and swam with him, and in the evening she danced with him. And he appreciated her kindness. The next day, as she was floating and swimming about and wondering whether she had done just right in the matter, she caught a glimpse of a handsomer young man floating near her. She had noted him at breakfast, for he was a fresh arrival, and had been tempted to indulge in a slight flirtation there and then, for he had encouraged it. But all at once she thought of John Trueboy, away up in Canada, and she really began to believe he couldn't flirt on a fishing trip.

But she changed her mind. She was floating in shallow water, as she found by touching bottom, and the temptation was too great. She prerended she couldn't swim, and shrieked and made a show of helplessness. This experimental deceit is sometimes affected by young women who really could give a mermaid a race.

The handsome fellow, of course, came to her rescue, and their acquaintance began. He set about teaching her. Young women who can't swim or who pretend they can't and young men who teach young women how to swim know something of the peculiar intimacy of this joyous task. It was not long before Mrs. Trueboy forgot all about John in Canada, and she even looked at the young man she had flirted with but yesterday as though she never before had seen him. At moments her conscience troubled her a bit, but she got over that. This was too much fun to be worrying about anything else.

"You seem to like me," said the young man unblushingly, as they waded out.

Mrs. Trueboy looked about in alarm. This was not the voice that had been teaching her to swim. But it was the voice of John Trueboy, who had shaved.—Judge.

QUITE A HARMLESS "GHOST"

Inoffensive Little Fragment Created Something Like Consternation in Section of Omaha.

Even if an official statement has been given out that a mouse was responsible for ringing the bell in the steeple of North Presbyterian church, the policemen of the district, as well as most of the residents in the neighborhood, cannot quite figure how it was done. The bell was disconnected at the request of Rev. John R. Mackey, pastor of the church, last January, and since then has not been ringing the hours as marked by the clock in the steeple.

Even the lieutenant in the police station suffered from the "creeps" and visions of a phantom bellringer and a ghost in the belfry. When telephone calls began to come into the station he dispatched four reserves to the church.

When they arrived they found that John Effener, the sexton, had made an investigation and could find nothing in the tower to explain the sudden clanging of the bell. Four "shaky" policemen and the sexton climbed the narrow ladder leading to the belfry and with police lanterns began an investigation. While they were looking the bell clanged again.

Expecting every minute to see an apparition, the police kept at their examination and discovered that a cog in the clock had been shifted by a small bit of hide, making it possible for the bell to ring. An examination showed that the hide was part of a mouse which evidently had been entangled in the delicate clock mechanism which controls the bell. The policemen still are wondering, however, how the mouse did the hickory dickory-dock feat, for the works of the clock are several feet off the floor and are held up by supports.

The clock was stopped last January at the request of Rev. Milo Bates rector of the Church of the Intercession. The parish house of that church is across the street, and when Mrs Gates was ill last winter the ringing of the bell annoyed her, and it was stopped. The bell was not attached to the clock again because residents of the neighborhood said it was a nuisance.—Omaha Bee.

Filipinos Play Baseball.

Baseball is now played in every part of the Philippine archipelago, and the number of persons actually engaged in it is remarkably high. Practically every school in the islands has a team and some more than one. Thirty or more provinces have their provincial leagues among the schools, and these are supplemented by interprovincial leagues. In Manila, where the chief offices of the government are located, there is an interurban league running scheduled games throughout the season; an industrial league composed of teams from the employes of the various large industrial companies of the city, and the Manila Baseball league, a professional organization.

TO DEFY THE EARTHQUAKE

A Japanese professor, who has been giving the matter long and careful study, declares that 99 per cent of the loss of life and property in the fearful earthquake at Messina could have been avoided by proper construction of buildings in this known earthquake zone.

No one can question Japan's right to instruct the world in the matter of "temblors." She has more of them than any other thickly settled region on earth, and yet she suffers comparatively small loss of life. Her great recent disaster, be it remembered, was caused by a volcanic eruption, not an earthquake.

The architects of Nippon are said to pin their faith to wood as building material, save where foreign influence has become strong. The earthquake resisting qualities of good wooden construction are clear to all, but wood is too expensive to use in southern Europe, and besides, it brings in the other danger—fire.

It looks as though those who insist on living where the earth shakes would have to adopt the American invention of steel skeleton construction, or go back to the old Greek plan, and build of stone with good-sized blocks, carefully rubbed joints and no mortar. Steel ties a building together in spite of earthquake shocks, the dry joint of the old Greeks permits a certain amount of yielding without damage to the structure.

Borax in the Family Wash

Most every one knows that borax gives greater cleansing power to soap.

Soap without borax is like bread without yeast.

There must be one part borax to three parts soap. This is only possible in borax soap chips.

"20 Mule Team Borax Soap Chips" at 25c will do as much or more cleaning than 50c worth of bar soap and go twice as far as a four-pound 25c package of ordinary washing powder.

No Time to Waste.

A western physician has two children, Ernest and Alice, aged nine and eleven respectively. Recently the doctor and his wife made a week-end trip to the country, leaving the children at home with the servants. They were to return Monday night on a train due at ten o'clock. The children wanted to meet them at the depot, and of course received definite instructions not to do so.

When the parents arrived, at 11:30, their train being an hour and a half late, they were surprised to find Ernest and Alice waiting for them, and all alone. The mother rushed forward to expostulate, but was cut off by the shrill voice of Alice crying: 'Hurry up, mother. Don't stop to talk. The taxi's up to $7.60 already!"

Colors of Music.

There has just been installed at Queen's hall in London a color organ for representing musical effects in terms of colored lights thrown upon a screen, which has been designed expressly for the deaf. Each note played produces a corresponding color, and the color combinations are said to cause the same delight to the deaf ear as the harmonious sounds of a composition do to the normal ear. The organ was devised by Prof. Wallace Rimington, and among those who have become very much interested in the project is M. Alexander Sciabin, a Russian composer, who has achieved a foremost position in European musical circles.

Over $29,000 was collected in one day at Paris recently for the Red Cross society, when 6,000 women sold artificial flowers.

Gasometer Signs for Aviators.

Mr. W. J. Lugard, representing the Tourist club of Holland, recently made an interesting proposal at a meeting of the congress of the League of International Touring associations, says London Answers.

Aviators experience much difficulty in ascertaining their whereabouts when flying over towns and villages at a considerable height, and Mr. Lugard suggested that at the top of every gasometer a large arrow should be painted with the tip pointing north. His scheme includes the use of index letters and reference numbers. For example, if SX were index letters representing Sussex, and Horsham were No. 8 on the list of towns in that county, the local gasometer would be marked S8X.

PALMER IS ASKED A FEW QUESTIONS

Knitting Company Man Wants Knowledge About Poverty.

SOUP HOUSES IN FULL BLAST

In Sections of Philadelphia the Conditions Operating Are Those Organized to Feed the Men, Women and Children With Free Soup and Coffee—Terrible Effects of Underwood-Palmer Free Trade Bill.

Philadelphia, Oct. 5.—That as a result of the Underwood-Palmer tariff bill poverty has become rampant in many sections of Pennsylvania is very evident from the appeals being sent out from the Richmond Kensington district of Philadelphia. A circular of the Richmond Soup Society caused Gustav Rumpf, president of the Brown Knitting Company, to address a letter to A. Mitchell Palmer, asking him to explain the present poor times, which he ascribes to "Palmerism."

In the letter Mr. Rumpf says, among other things:

"I note," says Mr. Rumpf, "that your time is pretty fully occupied just now in the discussion of 'Penroseism,' but I write to inquire whether you would be able to spare a few moments in the attempt to explain a very distressing condition of affairs among our working people, which we know as 'Palmerism?'

"There has been received by business men and others throughout this city a piteous appeal for help from the Richmond Soup Society. It is signed by Mrs. M. W. Ketchum, of 3024 Frankford avenue, secretary of the society. Let me quote for your information from this circular:

'Again we earnestly beg for your assistance in behalf of suffering humanity. In this Kensington district are hundreds of self-respecting and usually self-supporting citizens out of employment, whose families are in dire need. Their stories are appalling.

'One family of six, having been without food for two days, sold a bureau for 75 cents and lived on the proceeds for a week. This is only one of the many who part with clothing and piece after piece of furniture before they will ask for charity.

'Never before have we known so much poverty during the summer months. Anything we might write would be inadequate to describe present conditions.

'Come with us on a tour of investigation and be convinced of the necessity of this work.

'Our Soup House closed in April, yet our work of relieving the poor extends through every day of the year.

'We are continually facing hungry women and children. To turn them away without relief is heart-rending. Our funds are exhausted; we stand between you and the starving poor.

'Will you not send us a contribution? The smallest amount will be appreciated.'

"The President, whose praises you are singing throughout Pennsylvania, once wrote:

"'Everything that touches our welfare sooner or later goes back to the industries that sustain our lives.' I have often reflected that there is very human order in our Lord's Prayer. For we pray first of all, 'Give us this day our daily bread.' Knowing that it is useless to pray on spiritual graces on an empty stomach, and that the amount of wages we get, the kind of clothes we wear, the kind of food we can afford to buy is fundamental to everything else.

"How then can you fritter away your time on personalities when shocking conditions such as are described in the letter from the Richmond Soup Society are everywhere made manifest before your eyes?

Like Plank to the Drowning.

"Do you not understand that 'Peroseism' is to the distressed wage earners of this city like a plank to the drowning, because it stands for the exact reverse of those policies which have caused the suffering and poverty in our industrial centers; because it does not seek to avoid or to minimize the lamentable facts; because it recognizes unemployment and sorrow and because it seeks to correct them as the fundamental step toward future progress and advancement?

"'Palmerism,' on the other hand, ignores the Richmond Soup Society and its kindred organizations; ignores Richmond, Kensington, Philadelphia and Pennsylvania; ignores the unemployed who are walking the streets throughout this commonwealth; ignores the untold misery in store for them when the approaching winter shall set in with all its rigors; ignores everything that the people are now most concerned about and attempts to perpetuate the personal slander and demagogy that have been the cause of our undoing in America.

"I beg of you, sir, that you will read this letter from the Richmond Soup Society and tell us what claim you and your party and your policies have upon the votes of the unfortunates described by the secretary?

"Very truly yours,

"GUSTAV RUMPF."

WHERE ETIQUETTE IS STRICT

Ceremony of European Courts Simple Compared With That of This African King.

There was much ceremony observed at the king's court, says John H. Weeks. No one approaches him without first seeking his permission, and no one is allowed to sit on a chair in his presence except his sons and nephews. Up to 1884 no native was permitted to own a European chair, even for private use.

Ordinary men, approaching the king, had to kneel three times, once just inside the last entrance to the king's inclosure, then near the door of the "palace," and lastly immediately in front of his majesty. And the last time they knelt they put the palms of their hands together, rubbed their little fingers in the dirt, and then transferred the dirt from their little fingers to their foreheads or temples and clapped their hands. This ceremony they repeated three times at the last kneeling place, and the king answered by putting the palms of each hand across each other with the fingers of the right hand well above the thumb and index finger of the left hand and waving them. If the king did not answer thus, or if he thrust out his foot and waved his toes—which was an insult—the sooner the man retreated the better for him.

If a man omitted to send or take the king a share of his trading products he would not be favorably received, and might expect to see his majesty's toes wave, instead of his fingers. Well-to-do chiefs who failed to send him occasional presents were also coldly received, and the waving toes reminded them of their delinquencies. No written account was kept; but the king, like all natives, had a remarkable memory for what was owing to him, and never forgot when a debt was to be paid or a present was due. Chiefs and noblemen had to render homage to the king the same as ordinary men, but not every time they went into his presence.—Among the Primitive Bakongo.

A Century Ago.

Samuel Colt, inventor of the revolver, was born 100 years ago in Hartford, Conn. He was a boy of fifteen on board an East Indianman, a sailor before the mast, when he made his first model in wood of his celebrated revolving pistol. At the age of twenty-one he took out his first patent for the weapon. The officers of the government and the army and navy declined for a long time to give the revolver their indorsement, and the first company formed for its manufacture ended in failure. But the Seminole war in Florida demonstrated the merits of the weapon and it was then adopted by the army. Other wars in different parts of the world created a demand for the revolver, and by the time of the outbreak of the American Civil war, the Colt's arms-works could hardly meet the call for the famous pistol. Mr. Colt made a great fortune out of his invention, but in 1862, he died at the early age of forty-eight.

The Anti-Mosquito Raid.

The crusade recently launched in many cities to exterminate the mosquito should be taken up all over the country. While more formidable in some places than others, it should not daunt a people who have made such definite inroads against pests and purveyors of disease in general as we have in late years. Indeed, we have included even the mosquito in our conquests to such an extent as apparently to wipe out that particular species that spreads the germs of yellow fever. Of course, the American people have learned the primary lesson in all such crusades, namely, the relative value of modern sanitation. Cleaning out the breeding places, doing away with standing water or marshes and removing the cause of mosquito-breeding is the first step to be taken, and that, as we say, has been taken to a large extent.

Puts Value on Sneezing.

"A sneeze is the 'automatic bouncer' of unwelcome guests," said Dr. Walter A. Wells in an address before the members of the "Keep Wells," a women's organization for the study of good health at Washington. Doctor Wells had reference to the nose and throat as highways for disease.

"A great many people," he said, "believe that the important function of the nose is the sense of smell, and they seldom think of this organ as one of respiration. The sense of smell is only of secondary importance when its chief functions are considered. The nose is the organ of respiration, second only to the lungs in importance."

New Method of Finding Longitude.

The novel method of finding longitude lately tried by Professor Lippmann, the French astronomer, is the comparison of simultaneous photographs of the sky taken at two stations.

The zenith being shown by an artificial star, the difference in the places of natural stars very accurately indicates the difference in longitude, and if the longitude of one place is known, that of the other can be fixed with an uncertainty claimed to be only a few feet—perhaps ten or fifteen.

WAR BULLETINS

London, Oct. 12—The Germans lost their chance to cut off the retreating Belgians and British of defense in its flight from Antwerp, though a surprise attack by Franco-British forces at Quatrcht, near Termonde. They are now advancing rapidly on Ostend in the hope of capturing King Albert and the entire Belgian government. The Belgians the British and the French will form a new battle line to the south and east of Ostend for the defense of the new Belgian temporary capital and resume the offensive operations against the German lines in Belgium. Germany has imposed a fine of $100,000,000 on Antwerp as a war indemnity.

Berlin, Oct. 12—The city of Antwerp with all its forts has been taken by the Germans. It is reported that the Belgian government accepted the offer of the German government to arrange that all historical monuments in the city be spared as much as possible. The day before the bombardment a plan showing the position of the principal architectural features of the city was handed to the German civil administration through the American minister. Conditions in Gemany are normal. Everything is moving the same as if there were no war. Another Russian attack south of Przemysl was repulsed.

Petrograd, Oct. 12.—The Russian cavalry on the front attacked and cut to pieces several bodies of German advance guards and took many prisoners. In Galicia the Austrians have split up in groups.

Paris, Oct. 12—The allies captured a flag near Lassigny. On the left wing German cavalry were driven back. An attack of the Germans on the right bank of the Ancre was repulsed. On the center between the Oise and the Rheims the allies troops have made slight advances.

DECORATE, IS THE REQUEST OF COMMITTEE

To the merchants of Charleroi:

Thursday, October 15 is celebration day. It is up to us to make it an impressive event; one that will long be remembered; one that will reflect credit to the civic pride of all citizens.

Let's buckle on our armor, tighten our belts and show to the people of the surrounding country that we can greet them cordially and enthusiastically. Take an hour or two off and decorate the fronts of your places of business.

Try to make the decorations just a little better than they ever were before. As business men we are after the business, therefore, it will be to our everlasting credit to make our places as attractive as possible so that visitors will know that we are alive to our own interests and at all times glad to make our business houses inviting for their patronage. The committee in charge of the decorations earnestly urges every business house in town to tastily decorate for the big celebration. Let us pull together.

Committee.

FOUGHT HARD TO KEEP HIS JOB

Indiana Man All Run Down—Had No Strength—No Energy Left—Blood Poor—How Vinol Helped Him.

Shelbyville, Ind.—"I was all rundown, had no energy, my blood was so poor I felt badly all the time and my face was covered with pimples. I am a clerk in the hotel and had to put up an awful fight to keep at work.

"I tried Beef, Iron and Wine, and other remedies without benefit. I learned of how Vinol had helped others and decided to try it. After taking the first bottle I noticed a great improvement in my condition. I continued taking it and now I am rid of all my troubles and cannot say anything too good for Vinol."—ROY F. BIRD, Shelbyville, Ind.

For all run-down, weak, devitalized conditions of men and women, nothing equals Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil.

Vinol is a constitutional remedy. It creates an appetite, aids digestion, makes pure, healthy blood. In this natural manner it builds up strength and vitality.

Try a bottle with the understanding you can get your money back if Vinol does not help you.

SURVEYING IN FAR NORTH

Work Has to Be Done Quickly or Party Is in Grave Danger of Being Frozen In.

North of the Porcupine river, on the upper section of the Alaska-Canada boundary survey, the geodesists assigned to this work by the two governments found that only 100 days elapsed from the first navigation up the river in May until it was time to retreat rather than take the risk of being frozen in.

The highest and most difficult climbs on the work were probably made this last season, when one of the Canadian topographical parties occupied Mount Natazhat, 13,000 feet high, and a joint American and Canadian party succeeded in getting up without about two thousand feet of the summit of Mount St. Elias, which towers 18,000 feet above the sea. This party would probably have been successful in reaching the summit had not a four days' snow storm depleted their supplies to such an extent that they were forced to retreat to their base, 40 miles away over the glaciers.—Engineering Record.

WELL ADAPTED TO THE WORK

Dredge Employed to Dig Channel Through Cranberry Marsh a Credit to Designers.

In Wisconsin there is a clamshell-bucket dredge in use which at each shovelful removes an amount of material much greater than the size of the bucket itself. The reason is that the outfit is being used to dig a channel through a cranberry marsh, where the material to be cleared away varies all the way from tangled weeds to hardpan. The eventual object of this channel, which is 30 feet wide and 6 feet deep, is to drain 1,500 acres of cranberry land. In one section of this land there is a lake, the waters of which must be distributed throughout the bogs during certain seasons of the year. The use of this type of bucket, which, besides digging into hard ground, will also come away with bushels of underbrush, matted boughs etc., hanging from its jaws, illustrates the art of adapting the tool to the work.—Popular Mechanics.

Angleworm "Farm."

There are "farms," it seems, the products of which bear no relation to farming as ordinarily pursued. The latest addition to the list is an angleworm "farm," conducted by Mr. W. Orton Moon, who lives near Grand Rapids, Mich. His farm is one of the curiosities of Michigan. It consists of 25 pails, pots, pans and old crocks. Each receptacle, or "field," contains from 40 to 500 angleworms.

During the last three years his peculiar crop has netted him $1,000 annually. He delivers his worms in oiled-paper packages, one dozen to the package, at ten cents each. Here is his way of rearing angleworms:

Get several good angleworms. Place them in an ordinary pail, or granite receptacle, with two double handfuls of earth. Feed the worms twice a day on coffee grounds and corn meal. They will thrive and multiply.—Youth's Companion.

Captain's Remarkable Record.

After an absence of 42 years, Capt. John Leale, a well-known Englishman on the Pacific coast, is returning to England, having established a remarkable record in seamanship in America.

He retired, after 50 years' service, in May. He was a veteran skipper of the ferry service at San Francisco, Cal., and has traveled more than one million miles on the waters of the Bay of San Francisco and the rivers that empty into it.

In all that time, though he had had millions in his care, he never lost a passenger and never had a serious accident. It is the record of the bay.
